S when the Germans appeal to the semi-apocry; ha constitution of Valdamar, and to a treaty of the fifteenth century, as the true foundation of their claim over Slesvig-Holstein, we have nothing to to answer but that these may have been fitting and useful in their time, but have no carthly connection with existing circumstances. It is as if we were to appeal to the conquests and treaties of Edward I, as forming the actual title by which we hold Ireland, and on the validity of which her connection with the British Crown is to be dependent. Since these ancient dates the Dunish Duchics have undergone a thousand changes they have been the subject of half a dozen treaties, but we should be bound to held the treatics. new and old, as so much waste caper if they contained aught that was, according to modern idea, inimical to the freedom and happiness of shose whom at present they would affect. So we come back to the question, what are the actual rights of the inhabitants of the disputed territories? And in this inquiry nationality and language hely us to a slight presumption, but o not override or dispense with proof. If we took them as imperative tests we must consent to the dismemberment of England, of Switzerland, nay, of France herself. We must consent to the establishment of the Scottish Highlands. and of Wales, and of Brittany, as independent states; we must sever the Alpa according to the German or French tengues of their inhabitants, and must wrest Alsace from the Gallic empire in order to restore it to the sway of the Federal Diet at Frankfort. It is obvious by this reduction lity does not exist in this sense. There was no uprising in German Holstein before or even after the troops of the Diet proceeded to execution in that territory. Such an uprising had, indeed taken place in 1848, but we know, by the experience of Scotland subsequent to 1745, that the lapse of sixteen years after a rebellion may suffice to render even a nationality very content to remain in subjection; for George III., on his accastion in 1760, numbered no more devoted loyalista than his Scottish subjects. As to Slesvig the case is still clearer, since there is no rational pretence that the province that the province is other than Danish. The Cologne Gozette, a sufficiently Tentonic authority, confesses that the reports which had been spread respecting its impatience of the Danish voke have proved illusory that the Grman soldiery have found themselves in a land equally alien in speech and hostile in disposition, and that, save a few German settlers in the towns, there is no part of the population desirous of the German protection and alliance. Yet in the face of these existing facts, the German demand is that, in compliance with doubtful treaties of many centuries disuse. Sleswig and Holstein shall be united, that both shall together be declared part of the German Federation, and shall retain no connection with Denmark save the personal union implied in the King of Denmark being also : Doke of Slesvig-Holstein. To which the Danes reply by refusing to recognise any community of interest or fate between Danish Sleaviz and German Holstein, and while consenting that the latter should remain subject to the Diet, demand that the former shall be recognised as an integral part of independent Denmark. And these are in substance the gival claims between which the Conference

Some of our contemporaries are censuring Secretary Chase because he has selected a bank not only as a place of deposit for the government funds, but to act in office espects for the Department. which is conducted in part, as they claim by one of the editors of the Tribune. Even i true, this is not a crime. The public dissatisfaction with this movement is not so much on account of the banks selected, as because any are permitted to act the part of fiscal agents for the United States Treasury, when a better fiscal agency i already established. The Assistant Treasurers of the United States have complete organization for this purpose, working with a harmony, facil lity and economy unknown to the machinery of any other government in the world. Why should they be changed? Why should Mr. Cisco, as the Assistant Treasurer of the United States for the District of new York, with splendid fire-proo building, and competent and experienced clerks, by set aside to make room for Nationnal Bank No. 1 supposing the latter to be ever so good? The money deposited with the Assistant Treasurer remains on hand subject to the call of the government The money deposited in bank will probably be loaned out, at least in part, and therefore be subi ct. to say no more, to the ordinary risks of bahking. Is it not because of this difference that the latter system is adopted? Can any one give a better reason for it? And what is the consideration to be given for such deposits?
